Assemblyman Santabarbara invites you to visit the new statue of Harriet Tubman and William Seward

The statue, located outside the Karen B. Johnson Schenectady Public Library, 99 Clinton St., honors the friendship of Harriet Tubman and William Seward.

Friendship and activism that changed history:

Tubman led hundreds of slaves to freedom as one of the most prominent leaders of the Underground Railroad. Seward graduated from Union College and served as governor of New York and as U.S. senator before serving as Abraham Lincoln's secretary of state during the Civil War.
